Quick Division Synopsis

Lil Sluggers(Ages – 4) – This new division was created for our youngest players run by DLL coaches on Saturdays in a 60 minutes session teaching baseball fundamentals using fun games and drills. Each player will receive a jersey and hat and will participate in our Opening Day fun and T-ball Sunday celebration.

T-Ball (Ages 5-6) – The t-ball division is the player's introduction to the baseball practice and game experience. The season begins hitting from the tee and progresses into coach pitch. Each team bats every player every inning with the last player hitting a home run. The season ends with T-ball Sunday with the teams playing on the Majors field; player's names are announced with a lot of fun and games in between.

C-Division (Ages 6-8) – The C division is an introductory division with a focus on teaching every player the baseball fundamentals, but also to give every player a chance to experience every position and learn the nuances of the game. It's about understanding how each player is an important part of team. Scores and standings are kept, but the primary focus is to teach the game and for players to have fun. The season begins with coach pitch and progresses into player pitch. Players are evaluated and drafted by team managers.

B Division (Ages 8-11) – The B division is a little more competitive with player pitch and players are allowed to steal with some limitations. Players are evaluated and drafted by team managers.

Majors Division (Ages 10-12) – The Majors division is the highest level of Little League play. Returning Majors players do not need to be evaluated as they will remain on the same team. New players are evaluated and drafted by team managers. All 12-year olds must be drafted. Players not drafted are automatically entered into the B division player pool.
